Upon reconsideration of the claims and the previously applied prior art, the finality of the rejection of the previous Office action is withdrawn. The delay in presenting the rejection against the claimed invention is regretted.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1-6 and 8-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Musil et al. (cited in IDS filed 16 August 2006 as reference B1), for reasons of record as set forth in the Office Action mailed 11 March 2009.

The claims and reference have been described on the record. Upon reconsideration, it is noted that the term “ligand” in the instant claims encompasses the actual anion exchange groups, e.g., as set forth in paragraph [0010].

Applicants had amended the claims as previously rejected by inclusion of limitations from claims previously indicated as allowable. However, as set forth above, the ligands which bind DNA and RNA are the anion exchange groups of the matrix, and as such are taught in Musil et al.
